

WE WILL ROCK YOU: Girls from Manor House School perform the hits of Queen

Manor House School, Bookham

MANOR House has been shaking to the mighty guitar riffs of Queen's We Will Rock You musical (the schools version), writes Roan Fair.

Ben Elton's futuristic tale based on Queen's greatest hits packed the hall for three nights at the Bookham selective independent school for girls.

Most of Manor House's senior school girls were involved in the production - either as cast members, musicians or backstage crew. They were joined by former pupils who returned to help.

Emily Fisher played Galileo with Maya Pendrill-Adams as Scaramouche; Amelia Swaby as Britney; Lauren Corbett as Meat; Eileen Michelsen as the Killer Queen; Katie Mann as Khashoggi and Charlotte Maxwell as Pop.

Manor House School's head of drama and art, Teresa Williams, said: "The annual senior production is one of the most anticipated events of the school year.

"We pride ourselves on our high standards. The emphasis is on making the whole experience as enjoyable and professional as possible. Each year's piece is different and we try to offer new challenges.

"It is particularly lovely that so many of our former pupils return to watch and even help with the production. They tell me that their involvement in school productions represents some of their most memorable moments during their time at Manor House," she added.

Manor House School will be holding open mornings on April 20 (reception) and May 10 (whole school). For further information, contact Manor House School, 01372 457077 or go to the website www.manorhouseschool.org
